

BUILDING A FOUNDATION

OF WORKPLACE HEALTH

Don't assume your employees are healthy and well just because your industry involves physical labor. There are risks of injury due to physical fatigue as well as emotional stress. If you don't recognize when your employees are on the verge of injury, it can cost your company thousands in workers compensation, lost time and wages. And don't even get us started on the potential customer lawsuits for breach of contract!

Many employers don't realize that by investing and taking an interest in the overall health and wellness of their employees they are actually REDUCING their RISK, preserving their workforce, and saving money in the long run. Too many business owners mistake making an investment in wellness programs as an added expense. Likewise, employees may view their employers' taking an interest in their overall health as an invasion of privacy rather than a work benefit.

The Starr Group is ranked #8 in the 100 Healthiest Workplace in the U.S. The agency's award-winning wellness program features both physical fitness and emotional wellness options for employees. Because of this culture of wellness, people WANT to work and they want to work HERE.

The Starr Group leads its customers by example and the American Heart Association Workplace Health Symposium is a great place to start. Join us at the Sheraton Hotel in Brookfield for the AHA Milwaukee Workplace Health Symposium on February 20 from 7:30 to 11:30 a.m.
